Mr. SHIELDS suggested that the Defimey bill be postponed until Monday.

Mr. HUNTER said that he received letora daily from the Departments, stating that drafts were oming in and that no money was appropriated to pay need. His motion was then agreed to. Yeas, 21; locs, 17. The Deficiency bill was then taken up, and Mr. HUNTER then proceeded to explain Mr. Henter then proceeded to explain e bill. He said that it had been objected that there ould never be a Deficiency bill—that enough should be timated for in the first instance, and that the Government should, in all cases, confine its expenditures to the count actually appropriated—but this was not practible in all cases. The Deficiency bills grew out of the sage in the time of the commencement of the fiscal tr, which, in 1842, was fixed on the lat of July, inad of the lat of January. Previous to that change, we had been constantly partial appropriations to each the Government to go on, and then the full approations afterward.

there had been constantly partial appropriations to each the Government to go on, and then the full appropriations afterward.

This faculty of the House to pass a Deficiency bill was entinently proper and useful. It affords an opportunity to Congres to test the practicability of reducing the estimates. This was illustrated last year. The Committee in the House asked the Secretaries of War and Mayy if their estimates could not be reduced. The Secretary of the Navy reduced his; the Secretary of War declined doing so, because he said that all the money asked would be required. The House refused to vote his estimates, and cut down the appropriations one-half. The House struck in the dark. When the bills came to the Senate, he would never have recommended their passage with only half the amount appropriated that was asked for, had he not known that any mistake or error could be remedied by a Deficiency bill—hence this bill.

It was objected that by passing this bill Congress would indorse the reckless expenditures of the Administration. He did not think so. He believed no litems in this bill upon estimates from the Departments to supply deficience were for debts, to contract which the Administration had no authority of law. Under the act of 1820 the Government had authority to contract even without appropriations for that purpose, for supplies for the Army and Navy and for transportation of troops, &c. These matters form the principle bulk of the bill. There were other items for matters which Congress would have to appropriate in either this or the regular bill. The items giving sid to the Collins line was inserted against his will, and against which he would vote. He argued that Congress could not remedy the extravagnic of the expenditures, it could appropriate the money, but could not regulate its disbursement.

He could not say that the manner in which the money had been expended by the Quartermaster's Department of Bureau of Substance, had been either economical or vise. For the manner in which the public monies

Mr. Underwood said that the tone of the Hon. Senator's remarks was to the effect that the present Administration was responsible for all these matters, when in fact it was not so. For the inefficiency of the Clerical Corps, the gentleman's own party was responsible, for it destroyed the test of merit in a clerk, and made politics his only qualification. This was the effect of removals for political opinions. He would vote with the Senator for any reform in this matter. As to reforms in the mode of keeping accounts in the Department, he had repeatedly moved for the appointment of Committees to examine the books of the Department, but without success.

Mr. Hale said it was idle to speak of correcting any abuses at this time. The Democratic MT. HALE Said it was tale to speak of correcting any abuses at this time. The Democratic party might condemn these abuses, but would not correct them now that they expected shortly to have the benefit of them for their own friends. He then commented upon the expenditure of money for furnishing officers quarters at Navy Yards, which he said was in direct violation of the law of 1835 regulating the pay of officers of the Navy Party.

Mr. BADGER replied.

Mr. HALE rejoined. Mr. BERRIEN said that this bill was one out. BERRIEN Saild that this bill was one to supply the deficiencies and meet the pressing exigencies of the Government. He was surprised that on such a bill the Hon. Senator from Virginia should have made a general arraignment of the Administration. The conduct of the Administration, he desired to say, was capable of a complete defense and vindication, whenever the proper time and occasion should demand it.

Mr. Hunter said that he had not spoken of the conduct of the Administration, except when it connected with items in this bill.

The bill was then postponed.

Several petitions were then presented, and various reports made, after which the Sonate went but Executive Session, and then adjourned till Monday. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The SPEAKER announced the question pending to be on the motion of Mr. Parker, (Ind., Whigh to lay upon the table the report from the Committee of Vining, relative to the embryment by them of The Union and Republic establishments to execute the Public Printing, and the failure of Mr. Hamilton, the contractor, to perform the work. The question was taken and devided negatively. Yeas, 81; Nays, 89.

Mr. STANTON moved that the House go into Committee of the Whole on the private Calendar.

my. ORR (S. C., Loco) demanded the previous question on the pending propositions, namely, one offered by Mr. Brown (of Miss.) to refer the report to the Committee on the Judiclary, with instructions to report on the whole subject, and to recommend for adoption by Congress a plan for a Government Printing Bureau; and the other, offered by Mr. Florence, by way of amendment, that the Committee report a bill establishing a Public Printing Office, similar to Doty's plan.

The previous question being seconded the rate stood 86 to 43.

During the further, proceedings Mr. Polax (Tenn., Loco) made an ineffectual attempt to have the whole subject hid upon the table.

Mr. GOBMAN (Ind., Loco) delivered the closing speech, recapitulating the doings of the Committee on Frinting, and justifying their action, and then proceeded to notice the charges that the Committee were actuated by party purposes, and that they had sanctioned an arrangement between The Republic and The Union, by which the Treasury was to be plundered. Now the course of the respective editors of these newspapers in whatever they might have done or said, as between gentlemen, was without the knowledge of the Committee.

The Committee never consuited with either firm so far as he knew; as for bissaids.

The Committee never consulted with either firm so far as he knew; as for himself, he had from the be-timing to the end, until the final vote, gone against The Republic, and only supported that paper then because there was no other course for him to pursue. He desired that the Committee had undertaken to force a public printer on the House, and sold that they had pur-ewed the strict letter of the law. If there had been a disposition on the part of the Committee to make a co-alision, they could have done so on the proposition of The Sendieva Press. The purpose or suggestion was on foot to make the distinguished Editor of The Columbus (Ga.) Thus the Editor of The Southern Press, and he was to declare his acquiescence in the Compromise musures, and in the acquiescence in the Compromise musures, and in the acquiescence in the Compromise musures and he, with these words on his lips, and in conjunction with several others, asked whether an arrangement sould not be made to give part of the public printing to them. The partnership was proposed with The Union, but the gallant Editor rejected at once the proposal.

He (Mr. Gorman) said be had never heard of what Elwood Flaher, one of the editors of The Senthern Press, did in relation to getting a slice of printing, until it was mentioned yesterday. He referred to the combination of the Shate. Rights men, Abolitionists and Free Soliers, who voted to lay the report upon the table. A union of extremes; a coalition to break down The Union, which supports the Compromise as a finality.

Mr. VENABLE (N. C., Loco) remarked, as his name had been mentioned in this connection, that if there had been a combination between the Free Soilers and Southern Rights men, it was to prevent a plundering of the Treasury.

Mr. Polk asked whether the gentleman

CITY ITEMS. W. H. VAN WAGNER, the Poughkeepsie Blacksmith, formerly known as a most effective Whig speaker and recently as an advocate of Temperance, is now in our City, on his return from a lecturing tour in Massachusetts and Connecticut. We want to see his great tent pitched in our City for a series of Free Temperance Meetings, and urge our leading Temperance friends to unite in securing this end. Mr. Van Wagner may be seen in The Tribune office from 10 to 11 o'clock this morning, and we urge our friends to call and confer with him.

THE SPIRITUAL TELEGRAPH .- Our reapage, that a new WEEKLY PAPER with this title, de page, that a new WEEKLY PAPER with this tille, devoted to Spiritualism is about to be issued in this City. We suppose it will be open to all spirits whether in or out of the body, and it will doubtless be cordially received by those who are interested in modern mystical phenomen. Mr. Charles Parsides, with whom our readers are already acquainted, is to be its proprietor and publisher; the name of the Editor has not transpired.

TRY ESPENSCHEID'S HATS—His Spring styles are truly elegant, and their cheapness is a marvel. We have priced the market, and can recommend the establishment of Mr. Espenscheid, No. 107 Nassau-st, corner of Ann, as the hat store in New-York city. His stock is of the choicest that can be procured, and the beauty, case and elegance of the fabric beyond criticism.

"Art is long, and time is fleeting.
And our hearts, though stout and brave,
Still like muffled drums are beating
Funeral marches to the grave."

Alas, too true! But the grave can no longer hide our friends from us, no longer utterly bereave. Art, in her incessant efforts to rival nature, has dipped her pencil in sunbeams, and by an alchemy as subtle as it is beautiful, perpetuated, in defance of corroding time, every lineament and every expression of the beloved faces which are no more among the living. One of Root's perfect daguerreotype likenesses is, in many instances, the sole sacred relic of a dear friend. Delay not, then, but go to Root's, No. 363 Broadway, and secure, for the sake of your friends, that which death cannot take from them.

NIBLO'S.—The popular Roussets seem to experience no diminution in popular favor. The same ovation of deafening cheers, salvos of applause and presentation of bouquets greet them at each representation of their last new ballet of Le Diable à Quatre. Caroline is unexceptionably the most graceful and spirituelle dancer we have ever seen in New-York, and at Niblo's she seems to be justly appreciated. Madame Thillon is recovering rapidly, and is announced for Monday.
